The interstate commerce law forbids railways to charge openly or by device any one person a greater or less compensation for any service rendered in the transportation of passengers or property than it charges for a like and contemporaneous service. This is one thing that this law forbids. It does not, however, prohibit one comment from eiting that this law company from giving to its patrons better services than another. ing Sons of Liberty Lodge No. 8,974, and who also whitewashes fences and chops wood during the season of political inactivity, took a mean advantage in the recent election of a too-credulous candidate.

He dropped into the office of a prominent candidate and was cordially welcomed. The Rising Sons of Liberty poll fifty votes, are well disciplined and thoroughly organized. They vote solid when they do vote, and they vote as often as any other organization on Galveston Island, or as often as they can with safety; hence there was a vise-like firmness in the candidate's grip of the old man's "pickers and stealers."
"I has come to you for some advice,

The old man shook his head deprecating ly, and, producing a nickel, asked:

"They will not support any other candidate?" asked the untim.

"Does I look like a deceptive, owneliable niggah? Does I look like a fictifious culled man! De Bisin' Sons will easily 'round per like yer was a densijohn."

The money was paid over, the candidate semarking: "This is my contribution to establish a school in your ward. I want to see the colored man more intelligent, I do." "I hope dar am no most lead mickels in dis money."

"I hope so, too:"
"We needs schools powerful bad, bekase we is ignorant and liable to be tack in by designin' bad men."
"But now give me that nickel," replied the candidate.

"Heah it am. I ain't got no mosh use fosh it. You is de las candidate I have been to see wid dat ar nickel. I have done cleared more den three hundred-dollars wid dat nickel. All de udder three candidates has done paid up dar assessments, head! head!" and the old scoundred west off inte one of his indescribable guffaws.

When he got outside, however, head to
